Not only does this activity give participants the chance to bring out some competitive spirit, but it also allows them to work on some core soft skills, with categories testing participants on their observation skills, response times and overall mental agility. What Happens At Your Event?

To start the day off, your activity will begin with a briefing given by your event facilitators explaining how everything will run before they split everyone up into smaller teams.

Once the teams have been formed, each will need to make a short introduction video with cameras provided on the day as a short icebreaker activity. These will then be scored individually out of 10 by your instructors before the main event begins. When it does, teams will get to take part in a host of activities across a variety of categories, which will be scored out of ten by your facilitators.

Once each team has had a chance to take part in each game, the final scores will be totalled up by your facilitators to determine who the overall winning team is.
