What Happens At Your Event?

On the day, your event staff will bring everything with them and set up in an area of the office where everyone taking part will be able to see the host. They will then introduce themselves before explaining how the activity will run. They will also do a short demonstration on how to use the professional bar tools as well like mixers and shakers.

During the event, you will all have the chance to make up to three drinks each whilst playing a few hilarious games in-between all that mixing and pouring. If you're bringing together a brand new team of colleagues and want to familiarise them with each other, then this light-hearted and unique activity makes for a great way to do just that.
