CHAIN REACTION

Event Overview

The perfect icebreaker to bring a brand new team together for a fun and collaborative experience, Chain Reaction is a unique and creative way to host your next team building day that everyone will want to get stuck into. For this experience, everyone will split up into smaller teams to build their own section of a gigantic marble run contraption.

With a particular focus on teamwork, design and communication skills, team members will need to collaborate with each other and the other teams to make sure that the reaction goes smoothly from start to finish.

CHAIN REACTION

What Happens At Your Event?

On the day, the event will begin with a short briefing on how everything will run delivered by your event co-ordinator. After that, they will split the room up into smaller teams before assigning each of you a section of the contraption to build.

With all of your materials included on the day, you will need to be creative and inventive to make use of the kit you've been provided with, using creative skills to build up your section and making sure it connects well with the preceding and following sections.

When time finally runs out, the big test run will begin! Starting with the first section, the idea is for the entire chain reaction to work smoothly from start to finish. If you're successful, the run will end with a confetti cannon! Not only is it a great way to motivate your team and give them the chance to unleash their creativity, but you'll also feel a massive sense of achievement by completing this tricky challenge.

What's Included?

- Experienced event manager to host your event
- A range of materials to build and decorate your section of the story
- Once completed, interlink each section to build your chain
- If you're successful, your chain reaction will set off a confetti cannon!
- 🗸 Full risk assessments & £5million public liability insurance
- Well-kept and maintained equipment
