What happens at your event?

The day begins with a welcome and an introduction from Grow for Life, outlining the charity and the impact of the activity. Teams then split into smaller groups, each assigned a wildlife house to build. A woodworking expert leads a demonstration at the start, so no experience is needed. All tools, aprons and protective coverings are provided.

Teams then work together to construct and customise their wildlife houses, supported throughout by the expert. An icebreaker activity runs alongside the build to encourage interaction and maintain energy, helping teams communicate, problem-solve and collaborate effectively. At the end, completed wildlife houses are reviewed and prizes awarded to the best group. All items are delivered directly to Grow for Life, and teams receive a post-event impact report showing the difference they've made.

Frequently Asked Questions

? What is the Wildlife House Making team building activity?

Wildlife House Making is a charitable team building activity where your group builds wildlife houses to donate to Grow for Life, a charity that supports wildlife biodiversity. The event runs for three hours and includes a welcome meeting, a word from the charity, an icebreaker game, a woodworking expert to guide the build, all equipment, prizes for the best group and a post-event impact report. We deliver all the finished houses to Grow for Life after the event.

? What's included in Wildlife House Making?

Everything is provided on the day: a woodworking expert to host and demonstrate, an icebreaker game, aprons, tools and floor coverings for each group, prizes for the best group, delivery of the finished wildlife houses to Grow for Life, and a post-event impact report. Your team just needs to show up.

? Who is Grow for Life?

Grow for Life is a charity whose purpose is to nurture people so that they flourish. They provide social and therapeutic gardening sessions for people affected by low confidence, anxiety, depression or isolation. The wildlife houses your team builds support their work by contributing to the biodiversity of the green spaces they use.

? How many people can take part in Wildlife House Making?

Wildlife House Making works for groups of 6 to 200 people. Get in touch with your numbers and we'll confirm the right setup and venue for your team.

? What happens to the wildlife houses after the event?

We arrange delivery of all the finished houses to Grow for Life after the event. You'll also receive a post-event impact report so your team can see exactly how their work contributed to the charity's biodiversity efforts.
